

Dr. Homiler “Elie” Phanor, 35, Single

As a young scholar, Dr. Phanor is an educator, speaker, writer, ordained minister, chaplain, and counselor, in addition to other roles of leadership. He attempts to inspire others by contextualizing information through different media platforms ranging from workshops, leadership programs, bible studies, counseling sessions, and social media. Dr. Phanor has honed his wisdom as one who disperses knowledge by earning a bachelor’s degree, four master’s degrees, and a doctorate, among other certifications.

In addition, Dr. Phanor is the Chair of Accounting at Central Penn College, owns an accounting firm, serves as a business mentor for several organizations, is very involved in real estate investing, and co-owns a non-profit organization that provides healthcare, education, and food in Haiti, amid other business ventures. In addition to his daily pursuits, Dr. Phanor is pursuing a Master of Liberal Arts degree in Clinical Psychology at Harvard University.

More about him can be found on www.professorphanor.com